Ministering Cross-Culturally: A Model For Effective Personal Relationships

Synopsis

With more than 125,000 copies in print, this model for effective personal relationships in a multicultural and multiethnic world has proven successful for many. On the occasion of its thirtieth anniversary, this contemporary classic has been thoroughly updated to reflect Sherwood Lingenfelter's mature thinking on the topic and to communicate with modern readers, helping them minister more effectively to people of different cultural and social backgrounds. It is accessible, practical, and applicable to many ministry situations. An accompanying interactive questionnaire, designed to help students reflect on their own cultural values, is available online through Baker Academic's Textbook eSources.

This model for effective personal relationships in a multicultural and multiethnic world has proven successful for many. On the occasion of its thirtieth anniversary, this edition has been thoroughly updated to reflect Sherwood Lingenfelter's mature thinking on the topic and to communicate with modern readers, helping them minister more effectively to people of different cultural and social backgrounds. Praise for the Previous Edition "With vivid insight, lively narrative, and down-to-earth practicality, this book, by leading Christian anthropologists, is essential reading for anyone interested in ministering cross-culturally."--Robert Priest, Trinity Evangelical Divinity School "The model of basic values outlined in Ministering Cross-Culturally is one of the clearest and most helpful anthropological tools ever created for Christian workers. I have used this text for years in the preparation of undergraduate and graduate students for cross-cultural service, and it remains a student favorite. The model is simple and straightforward yet profoundly helpful in assisting cross-cultural sojourners to recognize value differences, assess and modify their behavior, and build trust in cross-cultural relationships."--Murray Decker, School of Intercultural Studies, Biola University

"This book's focus is vital in the study of missions. No book more incisively and creatively invites learners to evaluate themselves as they analyze other cultures. This edition reveals Lingenfelter's enhanced theology of culture: Cultures are not neutral but 'prisons of disobedience' that ministers must enter and submit to for the sake of the gospel."--Gailyn Van Rheenen, Abilene Christian University

"This volume is a very helpful book that provides guiding principles for cross cultural life. . . . The book can be used as a text for an introductory course at the college and seminary level. It can also provide basic evangelical anthropological insights to lay persons, pastoral leaders, and missionaries interested in ministering to persons of other cultures, [whether] at home or abroad."--David F. D'Amico, Review and Expositor

"This book superbly accomplishes its objective, which is to help readers gain a deeper understanding of themselves and the people around them in order to communicate the gospel and its ramifications. Ministering Cross-Culturally is a helpful resource for all who minister."--Octavio J. Esqueda, Southwestern Journal of Theology

Sherwood G. Lingenfelter (PhD, University of Pittsburgh) is provost emeritus and senior professor of anthropology at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, California. Marvin K. Mayers (1927-2015; PhD, University of Chicago) founded the Cook School of Intercultural Studies at Biola University, where he taught for many years.

Eye opening perspective from someone with real experience. Good insights reveal how our own cultural filters will affect our ministry and how to be aware of and minimize them. Excellent resource for Christians everywhere--the whole world is a mission field!

This book helps with the big picture on key ideas, whereas "Christianity Confronts Culture" is much fuller in concepts and material. The only constraint is "Christianity Confronts Culture" is exclusively a hard copy and is nowhere to be found thus far as an ebook. Hopefully, the book will also come to Kindle to provide a fuller resource to "Ministering Cross-Culturally."

The author helpfully challenges our sense of cultural superiority and also gives tools by which we can understand and enter into cultures different from our own. A must read for those who desire to effectively serve within another culture.

This book has a very useful assessment in it that works great not only for cross-cultural workers but also for looking at marriage from a cross-cultural perspective. Some of our participants said it gave them more insight into sources of potential or real conflict that was better than counselors they had talked with.

Great Book!

Would recommend for all Christians regardless of their ministry context. It helps us understand and see our culture blinders as well as those of others

I was challenged in a lot of ways while reading this book. There's obviously much wisdom, experience and Godly insight brought by the author.

Happy to find this book in good condition.
