Locating & Digging Old Dumps & Privies

Synopsis

Bottle digging is one of the few hobbies that can pay for itself, and sometimes even turn a nice profit. As a collector the sale of bottles found outside of your collecting interests can fund the purchase of pieces you really want but otherwise wouldn't be able to afford. To the student of History the artifacts uncovered often tie in directly. And to Many the thrill of being the first one to uncover and hold that artifact which has been buried for a hundred years or more gives an undescrivable sensation! The quest for buried treasure is to be found in most of us! Fact of the matter is most folks dont know there could be 'buried treasure' right under their feet! Many of our ancestors inadvertently left us buried time capsules here or there about their properties that could and often do contain potentially valuable artifacts. The majority of these property owners do not have the expertise to locate or sucessfully recover these artifacts and lack the time, energy or knowledge needed of the specialized markets to obtain maximum value. Over 70 pages with 17 chapters contains all the information you'll need to get started in this fascinating hobby from equipment to research to recovering as well as cleaning, pricing and marketing your finds.
